Inside Out and Back Again is a #1 New York Times bestseller, a Newbery Honor Book, and a winner of the National Book Award! Inspired by the authors childhood experience as a refugee—fleeing Vietnam after the Fall of Saigon and immigrating to Alabama—this coming-of-age debut novel told in verse has been celebrated for its touching child’s eye view of family and immigration. For all the ten years of her life, Hà has only known Saigon: the thrills of its markets, the joy of its traditions, and the warmth of her friends close by. But now the Vietnam War has reached her home. Hà and her family are forced to flee as Saigon falls, and they board a ship headed toward hope. In America, Hà discovers the foreign world of Alabama: the coldness of its strangers, the dullness of its food . . . and the strength of her very own family. This moving story of one girl’s year of change, dreams, grief, and healing received four starred reviews, including one from Kirkus which proclaimed it enlightening, poignant, and unexpectedly funny. An authors note explains how and why Thanhha Lai translated her personal experiences into Hà’s story.

This book is a part of my 8th grade language arts curriculum. In the classroom, it is supplemented with numerous non-fiction texts about the universal refugee experience. This book is a mostly non-fiction prose poetry account of the authors experience as a girl forced to flee Vietnam and resettle in America. The book begins on the Vietnamese New Year (Tet) 1975 and concludes one year later. There is enough historical data embedded in the poems to be educational and enough emotional personal experience to be enlightening. Additionally, there are interesting cultural references that introduce young reader to other cultures and religions. Young Hà’s life is turned inside out when war causes her mother to pack up and take Hà and her older brothers to a refugee camp in Guam. They are sponsored by an American cowboy after they change their religion (on paper) to Christian and his, this cowboy discovers that Hà’s older brother was studying engineering and might be useful repairing cars for his business. The second half of the book is an account of how Hà’s life comes back again as she adapts to her new home and life in the states, facing bullies and wishing that the person who invented English would be bitten by a snake! Given the current refugee-related news, this story helped my students understand the difference between refugees and immigrants and have a better human understanding of the reasons people flee their homes and seek asylum elsewhere, as well as the struggles they face in their host countries. A quick read for an adult. An enlightening read for a child or tween who may have questions about the refugee condition.
